BUAD 438 Service Marketing (3)

Why study services marketing? The United States, as well as much of the world economy, is dominated by services. In the U.S., approximately 81% of the GDP is accounted for by services. Yet traditionally, business school courses have focused on the manufacturing sector of the economy. This course is especially designed for those students who may be interested in working in service industries and in addressing the distinct needs and challenges of managing services and delivering quality service to customers. The primary theme of the course is that service organizations (i.e. banks, transportation companies, hotels, hospitals, educational institutions, professional services) require a distinct approach to marketing strategy – both in its development and its execution. The course will build and expand on ideas from Principles of Marketing and other marketing courses to make them specifically applicable to service industry settings. Also, a second theme of the course focuses on the role of service in manufacturing businesses. Currently, many firms in the manufactured goods sector see service as the basis for attaining a sustained competitive advantage.
